YOUR CUSTOM TYPING CONTENT:

The weather is getting cooler, pumpkin-flavored items are seen in many stores, and people are beginning to bundle up; the season of fall has begun! Between the months of September and November you might also notice that many trees begin to drop their leaves. This phenomenon of falling leaves is exactly how the season of fall got its name! The process of trees losing leaves (also known as abscission) helps the trees conserve water and energy in cold winter months. Once a leaf falls, protective cells grow around the exposed area. The tree will be ready to regrow its leaves in spring and the cycle will continue.
